JAS. H. MONTGOMERY, M. D.

RECOMMENDS DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY.

In a recent issue of the New York Magazine of Sanitation and Hygiene, the recognized authority on all matters pertaining to health, James H. Montgomery, M. D., says editorially: "After a careful investigation of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, a specific for kidney, liver and bladder troubles, rheumatism, dyspepsia and constipation with its attendant ills, we are free to confess that a more meritorious medicine has never come under the examination of the chemical and medical experts of the New York Magazine of Sanitation and Hygiene. In fact, after the most searching tests and rigid inquiry into the record of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, it becomes a duty to recommend its use in unequivocal terms to every reader of this journal whose complaint comes within the list of ailments which this remedy is advertised to cure. We have obtained such overwhelming proof of the efficacy of this specific—have so satisfactorily demonstrated its curative powers through personal experiments—that a care for the interest of our readers leads us to call attention to its great value."

At Home For a Few Days.

P. W. Saunders has returned home for a few days to attend to the settlement of his affairs as former postmaster at North Waterford, and as soon as possible he will return to accept his new position.

In the early spring he made engagements with the Hope Rubber Co., of Providence, R. I., a wholesale and retail jobbing house of rubber goods, with five branch houses, of which Isaac Crocker, (formerly of Oxford County), is proprietor of the five stores. Mr. Saunders was tended the management of the Lowell Rubber Co., Lowell, Mass., one of the five stores in the combination of which he has accepted, and will enter upon the new duty as soon as he returns. This house is one of the oldest in New England, being established Dec. 7th, 1876, when the rubber business in this country was in its infancy. But how changed today!

Think for only the past ten years, and see the wonderful improvements that have been made through the agency of rubber. There is no one single thing in the modern age that seems to be adapted to take its place, and nothing has been as useful in modern inventions as rubber.

In the Lowell store, in addition, they have the post office sub station No. 1, of which Isaac Crocker was elected postmaster, three years ago. The business in the department last year was $55,000. In that department they have a special clerk in charge. We wish Mr. Saunders every success in his new position, which he has been able to secure in so short a time, and we have no doubt, with the ability and integrity of Mr. Saunders, that under his management the corporation will be a financial success. A SUBSCRIBER.

Circus Is Coming.

The local circus season will be ushered in, Wednesday, July 22, when Sig. Sautelle's new big two ring railroad circus, menagerie, royal Roman hippodrome and wild west will exhibit afternoon and evening at the Driving Park. Mr. Sautelle is well known in the amusement world, having been constantly before the public for 17 years. He began, as did many of America's most successful men, with a scarcity of capital, but a great amount of characteristic Yankee grit and a firm determination to succeed. Primarily, his outfit consisted of a pigmy tent, a few horses, wagons, performers, trained dogs and a clown. He gained a reputation by exhibiting what he advertised and his show at once found a warm place in the hearts of an honest, discriminating and appreciative public. Early in his career Mr. Sautelle set before himself the motto "everything of the best and the best of everything," and that he has rigidly lived up to this maxim is attested by his present enviable popularity and position in the circus world. From a very humble beginning his amusement enterprise has grown to be the acknowledged best of all two-ring circuses and Sig Sautelle is known throughout the length and breadth of the land as one of the foremost leaders of this profession. Mr. Sautelle has taken his circus year after year over much the same territory and has always met with phenomenally increasing patronage which is positive proof that his shows are highly meritorious, illustrating that the homely phrase of Abraham Lincoln still holds: "You can fool all the people some of the time and some of the people all the time but you can't fool the people all the time." This famous showman has spared no expense this season to secure the very best and newest all-star features, several of which cannot be duplicated and would do credit to the largest circus in the world. One exclusive feature is a ferocious riding horse. The brute is the same that attacked and nearly killed its trainer at the winter quarters in Homer, N. Y. a few months ago. "Nero," for that is its name, is a large, fierce beast than which there is no member of the cat family more fearless, savage and treacherous. This nerve destroying, hair raising act will be given in one of the regular open rings. Spectators need have no fear, however, for their safety, as a extra precaution is taken to guard patrons as to make it absolutely impossible for the lioness to escape from the arena. Another salient feature among a grand profusion of marvels is the 63 horse act. Under the perfect control of one man, who sits astride a pure white horse at the apex of a previously erected pyramid, 63 members of the equine race enter a single ring and, after assuming their respective positions execute a most complex and marvelous drill.

Either of the two above mentioned features is worth traveling many miles to witness. The number of all-star artists engaged for the Sautelle shows this season doubles that of last year and the programme which they now offer is one of par excellence and admirably suited to the tastes of old and young alike. There is not an act in the entire shows which can tend to bring the faintest semblance of a blush to the cheek of the most fastidious. The Sautelle circus has always been the acme of chasteness. The shows have been enormously augmented in every department this year. In the $100,000 menagerie are typical specimens of every species of animal life. A tour of this peerless department is of vastly more educational value than a trip through many of America's best known zoological gardens. This will be the second year Mr. Sautelle has traveled by rail and a special train of 26 cars is now required to transport this mammoth tented amusement institution, while he employs a well organized army of over 400 workers and hundreds of horses, ponies and donkeys. The daily expenses of these all new shows are truly astounding. As an introduction to the good things to be offered at the afternoon and evening performances in Norway a gigantic street pageant, of marvelous splendor and dazzling brilliancy, will be given on the morning of the above day and date. The grand professional display of wealth will be resplendent with lustrous chariots, bands of clever musicians elephants, camels, several large, open dens of wild animals, a steam calliope and a greater number of big features than has ever before been seen in a similar pageant. Don't forget the day and date. The grand miss seeing the magnificent free street spectacle even if you do not attend the performance.

Formerly Shepardsfield.

Oxford is a part of the original plantation of Shepardsfield, whose territory embraces the present towns of Hebron and Oxford, and was granted to Alexander Shephard, Jr. a civil engineer, for making a map of the "late province of Maine." Shepardsfield was incorporated as the 78th town, March 6, 1792, and named Hebron. The people of Shepardsfield petitioned to have the new town called Columbia, but that part of their petition was not granted. The town of Hebron was divided in 1829, the eastern portion retaining the name of Hebron, and the western Oxford.

How to Study Birds.

There is one thing at least in which we farmer's daughters have the advantage over our city sisters and I would like to tell them of the pleasure as well as profit to be gained from it.

Somewhere I had read that a piece of suet tied on a tree would give the birds a server pleasure as well as food. I determined to try it; so, trimming off my steak for dinner and tying a strong piece of twine around the suet, I fastened it to a nail driven into a tree, high enough to be out of reach of cats and dogs. For some days I waited, often glancing at that tree, for it was quite near the house, in front of the window, where dishes were washed and baked done.

At last one day, after three weeks, I was rewarded by seeing a blue-gray bird, with white underneath and dark cap, a little smaller than an English sparrow, with quick movements and unmistakable call, and I knew he was a nuthatch by his going head first down the tree. He is the only bird that does this, and he is a dear little visitor, whom I have learned to love almost as well as the chickadee.

For the last two winters the chickadees have failed to find the suet, but two weeks ago I was made very glad by hearing their cheery, happy-go-lucky call, and hurried to the window to find two of them in the tree. Each bird has its own peculiarities, which it is such a pleasure to find out for one's self. I often think what a joy it would be for some "shut-in" to sit near a window and make friends with these charming visitors.

The chickadee always stands on the suet when he helps himself, while the nuthatch and woodpecker stand on the tree. Small as the chickadee is—hardly more than a feather ball with a black cap—he is very fearless, clinging to the suet or branch of the tree in a high wind and he has been in the tree for me at one time the suet had become little else than a piece of skin, blowing far out in a fierce wind, but Mr. Chickadee did not hesitate; he hopped on to it, and away he was blown, clinging fast.

The downy woodpecker is the first to find the suet in the fall, as well as the last to come in the spring. For I keep it out only in the cold weather. The downy is a little larger than the nuthatch, about the size of an English sparrow, black above, striped with white, a black stripe on the top of the head, and white beneath. The male has a red patch on the back of the neck, and the female is very similar, without the red. Her movements are very different from the others, and she uses her tail as a prop. The hairy woodpecker is another visitor to our suet—much larger than his smaller relative, though almost a facsimile. This winter he made his first visit, and when I first saw him he seemed a splendid big specimen of the downy but I soon learned my mistake. He is the bird that makes the "harsh call," the "discordant note," as some one puts it. Their manner is very different from the social little chickadee or the nuthatch, though Mrs. Luthatch demurely waits while her nuthatch satisfies himself.

It is only in the spring that Mr. Woodpecker shows any attention to his mate, and the books tell us that in the fall he pecks out a perfectly round hole, usually on the under side of a limb, where neither snow nor wind can harm him, and digs out a horizontal tunnel in this dry brittle wood, before he turns downward to the yearly chamber, where he lives in selfish solitude while the female may make herself cozy in an abandoned hole or not, as she chooses.

These four birds visit us usually many times a day, while we grow familiar with their call and movements, and have learned that the chickadee will make a Phebe whistle. Some one has said the Phebe bird stayed here all winter, but the chickadee bird says Phebe very plainly, it is not the Phebe bird. One morning about two years ago, I was filled with delight to see coming a great dash a beautiful bluejay. He seized the whole piece of suet, and tugged in vain. Such a beautiful bird he was! No stuffed specimen ever compared with him. I would have considered the trouble of keeping the suet on the tree for the whole winter compensated if he alone had come.

It is such a delight to watch them so near, and they are so shy, but perfectly oblivious to the eyes fixed upon them as they eat. An opera glass should always be kept on a shelf close by.

The Haying Season.

What season of the year is more enjoyable to the true husbandman than a good farm, with up-to-date appliances, than haying time? Owing to the long period of drought, which retarded the growth of grass, haying will be about two weeks later this year than usual and the old rule of beginning Monday after the Fourth will meet with an exception this year.

If a farmer has a large amount of hay to secure, with a limited amount of help, he will be obliged to cut some too early, or a large stack will be cut too late. Upon many farms the entire crop is now secured in two weeks of good weather.

In no farm work has improved machinery done so much to reduce the expense, as well as relieve the farmers of the hardest of labor as in haying.

It would be impossible to secure the hay crop in the old way with American help, and foreigners would have to do it, were it done at all, if it was not for the machinery.

Now a farmer can ride into the field after breakfast, on an improved mower, and by eleven o'clock ride out, after cutting four acres of grass.

A serious mistake in haying, made more often than any other, is that of over-drying. It is astonishing how little drying is needed, if the weather is hot and the hay packed solid in a tight barn. It requires good judgment to tell just the right time to cart hay to the barn, in order to have it come out in the best possible condition.

Cutting hay by machinery costs on an average nearly three dollars per ton. Of course, this depends on the location, the yield and the weather.

The right stage at which to cut grass for the best results has been long and ted by experimenters, who seem to agree that the period during the formation of the seed is the best time to cut timothy, which rule applies to all grasses. The clover crop needs to be secured when about a third of the blossoms have turned brown. Oats are governed by the same rule as the grasses.

A generation ago, when the haying season lasted about six weeks, and sometimes two months, the work was so laborious that the farm hands found themselves exhausted at the close of the season, while now a couple of men will harvest a hundred tons in the season and come out of it as fresh and vigorous as when the haying began.

GILEAD.

The Dictionary and the Flag.
Another term of our village school of twelve weeks duration, taught by Cleo A. Russell of Bethel, came to a successful close Friday, July 10.

On the preceding evening the teacher and pupils gave an entertainment at the town hall, commendable in the aim, very creditable to the scholars in the performance of their parts and truly worthy of the generous patronage it received from the parents and friends of the children who took part in the exercises.

The music furnished by the Gilead Cornet Band, the quartet and organist, did very much to impart interest to the occasion, while a good audience in full sympathy with the pupils as was clearly made manifest, tended to inspire them to do their best.

The order of the exercises for that evening hour which has been kindly furnished us may here properly find its place of insertion. Program:

The high character and ambitions of John Adams and Daniel Webster are shown forth in golden words in Miss Gould's brochure, which is a shining example of what can be done in the way of original historical research, with the materials furnished already by our rapidly developing American life. An Aged Minister Dead.

Luther Loomis Howard, father of L. L. Howard Jr., of Norway, was born Oct. 18, 1825, in the town of Leeds, and died at Hallowell, June 3d, 1903. His parents were Freewill Baptists, and he began preaching in that faith at the age of sixteen. About 1850 he while working his trade in the Prescott machine shop at Hallowell, he met Dr. Smith, an eminent Adventist and becoming interested in the soon coming of the Saviour, and conditional immortality, he studied his bible night and day and his faith was confirmed in that doctrine. He began to talk it, and the people of the Kennebec valley sent for him from far and near, that they might hear his words of truth, and many were the battles fought and the victories won. Later he met Elder David Hanscomb, an able young medical student who studied with Dr. Stedman of Poland, and who gave up his practice to preach the truth. They labored together several years and hundreds were converted.

For six years he was president of the Advent Christian Conference of Maine. In the early sixties, he and Elder Hanscomb embraced the seventh-day Adventist faith, and when that conference was organized, he was chosen president. Elder Hanscomb soon after died, and Mr. Howard labored quite extensively in the New England states, part of the time alone and a part in connection with Elders J. N. Andrews, M. E. Cornell, D. M. Canright, P. C. Rodman and others.

A flood of light has been shining upon him, and in his awful suffering he has shown such patience, such a meek, lovely, christian spirit, that we all feel sure that he has been with Jesus and learned of him, and has died in the triumph of faith.

The funeral was at the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. C. Gilbert, June 5th, conducted by E. C. Gilbert, assisted by the Methodist minister of Hallowell and Elder H. H. Dexter of Portland.

Her Life Might Have Been Saved

Two-thirds of the inmates of our hospitals are women. They are in most cases either for treatment or for an operation, made necessary by advanced stages of female troubles which have resulted in ovaritis, a tumor, or displacement of the womb.

"AN OPERATION NECESSARY."

How these words after the examination strike terror to a woman's soul, and with what regrets she hears them, when she considers that the operation has become necessary through her own neglect. Female derangements cannot cure themselves, and neglecting the warnings of nature only means putting it off until there is no cure. The woman who lets her trouble make headway pays the penalty of a dangerous operation and a lifetime of impaired usefulness at the best, and the operation often proves fatal when her life might have been saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion and nervous prostration; or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, and the blues, they should remember that there is one tried and never-failing remedy; Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound at once removes such troubles.

READ THE FOLLOWING LETTERS.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot tell you how much good you have done me and how thankful I am to you for it. For five years I have not been free from pain for a day. I have had backaches, headaches, and those awful dragging sensations with leucorrhœa, and when menstruation appeared I was in such a condition I could hardly sit up. I doctored all the time, but nothing helped me, and I was told that an operation was necessary."

"Two months ago a friend suggested that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. No one knows what it has done for me and how thankful I am for it. It brought me the first well days I have had for five years. It did for me what doctors could not do, and I want every suffering woman to know about it."—LOUISE NAUER, 751 E. 166th St., New York City.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to thank you for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I had terrible hemorrhages, being lacerated from the birth of my child. The doctor told me that if I would have an operation I would be well and strong. I submitted to it, but was worse than before; no one knows what I suffered. Finally a friend advised me to try your Vegetable Compound; I did so, and commenced to feel better; I continued its use, and it has done for me what doctors could not do. I am strong and well. If women with any kind of female troubles would only consult you before submitting to an operation they would be spared many hours of pain and suffering. I cannot thank you enough for what you have done for me."—ANNA KIROHOFF, 156 E. 100th St., New York City.

$5000.00 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness.

KEZAR FALLS.
Wants the Local News.
The following letter was justly deserved, and accepted in the spirit intended. Hoping it may prove of interest and encouragement to other writers of local happenings, in showing that items from various towns are read with appreciation and interest, we are sending it to the ADVERTISER, minus the clipping, with sincere regards and the hope that "Constant Reader" may be heard from again.
"Dear Correspondent:—I was very glad to see the above items, for it showed that I was not the only one hungry for Kezar Falls news; and I have been wondering why the correspondent from that place couldn't be as foolish (?) as from some other towns, and if your neighbors go to the post-office, tell us about it, how they went, what they went after, and how they got it. The people in and near Bridgton are especially interested in the students who go out from the academy. We are interested to know something about them, after they leave us, and I think a good way for us to be posted is through the ADVERTISER. Magnus Ridlon, what liberty has he? Hasn't he done anything bright enough to be told of since he graduated one year ago? D. D. Ridlon, former mail clerk on Narrow Gauge, has hosts of friends this way who would like to hear of his whereabouts and doings. And now three have just left us—French, McDaniels and Lord. We surely want to be posted in regard to their victories in baseball, as well as other items of interest. Several weeks ago we read that Miss Lord came from Massachusetts, sick. We wonder if she is well again. Then Rev. Pease in the church affairs, school affairs and other people's affairs. Ralph Stanley was this way long enough so his friends would like to hear where he is and what he is doing. There are several others, but I think I have given you written, enough for next week's column. You did exceedingly well last week. Try and do better next week, and you shall have your reward. I don't know whether I am addressing a gentleman or a lady, but whoever you are, I hope you won't be offended at what I haven't written, and are willing to be "punched up" occasionally by a constant reader of the NORWAY ADVERTISER.

He was brought to North Waterford at his grandmother's where he always made his home. Rev. Mr. Pond preached the funeral sermon, July 12th, and spoke many comforting words. Singing by the choir. He was laid to rest in Elsiebetown cemetery beside two sisters and other relatives. The deceased was unmarried.
